

How ABB prepares its controllers for the future by enhancing their skills

Since 2011, the CFO of ABB Switzerland has been responsible for a three-day training program for all controllers to prepare them for future challenges. What started as a program in Switzerland has since developed into a management training program for all controllers in the regions of Switzerland, Central and Eastern Europe. ABB thus invests in topics that are relevant to every controller. Namely macroeconomic issues, strategic changes in ABB, communication, leadership and negotiation skills, as well as the latest scientific findings in the field of auditing. All content from the University of St. Gallen will be complemented by cross-functional controlling teams from ABB and other keynote speakers. A finance board, consisting of many alumni, sponsors and coaches the participants with the goal of ensuring that they meaningfully implement the topics discussed into their daily work.
