St.Galler Diversity & Inclusion Conference

12 September 2017

Executive Education Campus Holzweid of the University of St.Gallen

St.Galler Diversity & Inclusion Conference

In times of globalisation and migration, demographic change as well as changing income and family patterns, the successful handling of diversity and inclusion has become a decisive core competence for companies.

At the University of St.Gallen, numerous research centres and institutes are dealing with this highly relevant topic. The aim of this conference is to discuss newly gained insights with practitioners in the field.

Get in touch with researchers who have been dealing with diversity and inclusion for years. Share your practical experience and initiate new research projects together. Connect with people who are also concerned with this topic and enjoy the day in an inspiring environment.

I look forward to exchanging ideas with you!

Programme

What are the benefits of diversity? What big challenges lie ahead? Who should be included and how? What makes sense from a business and socio-political view?

Current research findings of the University of St.Gallen will be presented in joint sessions, each consisting of a short lecture by a HSG-researcher and a corresponding contribution from a practitioner representing a company, public administration or non-profit organisation. Each session will conclude with a moderated Q&A session. The focus of the Q&A session is on implementation models and experience. A panel discussion on migration as well as two keynote speeches from research and practice will offer new perspectives on additional diversity and inclusion topics. »
